

Students follow the new AQA GCSE specification.
The following options are our chosen topics of study

- Health and the People c.1000AD to the present day
- Elizabethan England
- Germany 1918-1945
- Conflict and Tension in Asia, 1950-1975

GCSE students develop a wide range of highly valuable skills - history is far more than just knowing 'stuff' about the past. It is about critically utilising a range of different sources, being able to put forward and defend an argument or an interpretation and to analyse and evaluate the causes and consequences of events. These are all skills which can be used as a foundation for further study of any subject in Key Stage 5 or for future employment.

Students are extremely well supported, with tailored intervention available after school as well as peer intervention and one-to-one support when needed.

To support students outside the classroom, we have developed a website that has revision resources, as well as homework and exam tasks. There is always something students can be doing to improve their progress within the subject. This site will expand and develop as students go through the course.
